Office of Commissioner

November 1998

Dear Colleague:

We are pleased to present to you The Mississippi Higher Education Almanac, formerly known as the Statistical Abstract. The Almanac for the academic year 1997-98 provides comparative and historical data which answer the most frequently asked questions regarding enrollment, degrees, credit hours, ACT scores, tuition, finance, and faculty at the eight four-year public institutions of higher learning in Mississippi.

Mississippi's four-year public institutions play a significant role in higher education in the Southeast as well as in the nation. The Almanac contains data that can be used to assist university staffs, state governmental officials, and the general public in gaining a perspective on the impact that higher education has on our state. This information is also used to monitor changes and progress.

Publication of data about the eight public universities in the system and their students is one way we have of being accountable to the citizens of Mississippi for their investment in higher education.

We hope that you find The Mississippi Almanac of Higher Education useful and informative.

Sincerely,

Thomas D. Layzell

Thomas D. Layzell

SOURCE: Compiled August, 1993 by the Board of Trustees of State Institutions of Higher Learning from: Board files; Register of Commissions, Office of Secretary of State; and Register of Commissions, Library Division, Mississippi Department of Archives and History.

NOTE: In February, 1932, the Mississippi Legislature passed Senate Bill No. 59, which abolished all existing individual college boards and created a single board of nine trustees (plus the La Bauve Trustee* and the Governor serving as an ex officio member) to control all state-supported institutions of higher learning. On February 22, 1932, the Senate approved the Governor's appointees, and on March 1, 1932, the Board of Trustees of State Institutions of Higher Learning organized and assumed the functions as directed by the new law.

The La Bauve Trustee was an additional trustee appointed by the Governor for the University of Mississippi who voted only in matters pertaining to the University. By statute, this trustee had to be a resident of DeSoto County and was appointed to serve for a term of four years to commence from the date of appointment. Section 37-101-3, Mississippi Code of 1972, Ann.

The La Bauve Trustee appointment to the Board was removed from the Constitution on December 4, 1987 and from the statute by Laws of the General Session, 1988, Chapter 426.

Alcorn State University
Dr. Clinton Bristow, President

The oldest predominantly black land-grant university in the United States, Alcorn State University, opened in1830 as Oakland College for the education of white male students. At the beginning of the Civil War, this Presbyterian school closed, and, upon failing to reopen after the war, was sold to the State for the education of African-American citizens. In 1871, after Congress passed the Morrill Land-Grant Act of 1862, the Mississippi Legislature used funds generated through the Morrill Land-Grant Act to establish the college as Alcorn Agricultural and Mechanical College for the education of African-American youth. In 1974, the college was renamed Alcorn State University by the Legislature. Today, Alcorn State University is a co-educational, land-grant, liberal arts, science and teacher education public institution offering programs leading to associate, baccalaureate, master's, and educational specialist degrees.

Alcorn State University is situated on 1,756 acres - 350 acres for the 89-building campus and the athletic fields and 1,456 acres devoted to agriculture and research.

Dr. Kent Wyatt, President

Created as Delta State Teachers College by an act of the State Legislature in 1924, the college opened for its first regular session on September 15, 1925, with 11 faculty and staff members and an enrollment of 97 students. The name was changed to Delta State College in 1955 and Delta State University in 1974. Graduate courses were first offered in 1965 when the Master of Education degree was approved. After other master's programs were added, the University offered the Educational Specialist degree in 1972 and the Doctor of Education degree in 1981. Delta State University provides a comprehensive undergraduate curriculum with 13 baccalaureate degree programs in 38 majors. It also seeks to meet the need for advanced study in certain fields by providing programs for 9 master's degrees, the Educational Specialist degree, and the Doctor of Education degree. The Mississippi Delta, a twenty-county, northwest region which is rich with a variety of ethnic and cultural groups, provides approximately 80 percent of the University's enrollment.

Delta State University's 365 acres houses 54 primary buildings, including a 1,200 seat, state-of-the-art Performing Arts Center and a heated indoor-outdoor swimming facility, as well as a 9-hole golf course.

Jackson State University
Dr. James E. Lyons, Sr., President

Founded as Natchez Seminary in 1877 by the American Baptist Home Mission Society to serve the Mississippi Valley between Memphis and the Gulf Coast, Jackson State University was established at Natchez, Mississippi "for the moral, religious, and intellectual improvement of Christian leaders of the colored people of Mississippi and the neighboring states." The school opened on October 23, 1877 with 20 students, and it operated as a private church school for 63 years. In 1882, the Society moved the school to Jackson. In 1894, the college was moved from its site in north Jackson to a new tract of land in the southwest section of the city. The State assumed support of the college in 1940, assigning to it the mission of training teachers. Between 1953 and 1956, the curriculum was expanded to include a graduate program and a bachelor's program in the arts and sciences. The name was changed to Jackson State College in 1956 and to Jackson State University in 1974. In 1979, Jackson State University was officially designated the Urban University of the State of Mississippi. As the Urban University, emphasis was placed on providing public service programs designed to enhance the quality of life and to seek solutions to urban problems in the physical, social, intellectual, and economic environments.

Jackson State University's campus is 131 acres, with 43 buildings, and is located one mile west of the central business district of Jackson, the capital city of Mississippi.

Mississippi State University
Dr. Malcolm Portera, President

On February 28, 1878, in response to the Morrill Land-Grant Act of 1862, the Mississippi Legislature established the Agricultural and Mechanical College as one of the national land-grant colleges. Its mission was to offer training in "agriculture, horticulture, and the mechanical arts...without excluding other scientific and classical studies, including military tactics." The College received its first students in the fall of 1880. In 1887, Congress passed the Hatch Act, which provided for the establishment of the Agricultural Experimental Station. Two other pieces of federal legislation provided funds for extending the mission of the College. In 1914, the Smith-Lever Act called for "instruction in practical agriculture and home economics to persons not attendant or resident," thus creating the state-wide effort which led to Extension Offices in every county in the State; and, in 1917, the Smith-Hughes Act provided for the training of teachers in vocational education. In 1926, the College received its first accreditation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. In 1932, it was renamed Mississippi State College. In 1958, the Legislature renamed it Mississippi State University.

Mississippi State University's grounds comprise about 22,200 acres, including research farms. About 1,000 landscaped acres of the central campus are maintained to residential standards. The campus includes almost 5.85 million square feet of space in more than 320 buildings.

Mississippi University for Women
Dr. Clyda Stokes Rent, President

Upon her establishment in 1884, Mississippi University for Women became the first public college for women in America. Originally known as the Industrial Institute and College, the institution was created by an act of the Mississippi Legislature on March 12, 1884, for the dual purposes of providing a liberal arts education and preparing women for employment. The first session began October 22, 1885, with an enrollment of approximately 250 students on a campus formerly occupied by the Columbus Female Institute, a private college founded in 1847. The name of the institution changed to Mississippi State College for Women in 1920 to reflect an emphasis on collegiate rather than vocational education. The name changed again in 1974 to Mississippi University for Women to reflect better the nature of the academic programs including graduate studies. In 1982, the United States Supreme Court ordered the university to admit a male student to the nursing program. Following this historic decision, the Board of Trustees of State Institutions of Higher Learning ordered the university to change its policies to allow the admission of qualified males to all university programs. In 1988, the Board of Trustees reaffirmed the mission of Mississippi University for Women as an institution of quality academic programs for all qualified students with emphasis on distinctive opportunities for women.

Mississippi University for Women covers more than 104 acres within the residential area of Columbus. Twenty-four of the buildings are listed in the National Register of Historic Places. There are thirty-one structures used for academic, administrative, and other student functions and ten residence halls. The campus also offers 8 tennis courts and a one-half mile outdoor running and walking path with six exercise stations.

Mississippi Valley State University
Dr. Lester C. Newman, President

Mississippi Valley State University was created by the Mississippi Legislature as Mississippi Vocational College in 1946. The expressed purpose of the institution was to train teachers for rural and elementary schools and to provide vocational training. The first academic session started in the summer of 1950 with an enrollment of 305 in-service teachers. The first full academic year began with 14 regular students and 7 faculty members. Under its original name and purpose, the institution provided a higher education opportunity for many first-generation college students. In order to reflect the broadening scope and offerings of the institution, its name was changed to Mississippi Valley State College in 1964. Under this transition, the institution became more general purpose in nature while retaining its commitment to provide special higher education opportunities. The name of the institution was changed to Mississippi Valley State University in 1974. Graduate programs were begun in 1976.

Mississippi Valley State University is located on a 450 - acre tract of land in Leflore County, with 200 acres designated for campus development. The physical resources, including buildings, grounds, and equipment, are available to serve the needs of the institution in relation to its purpose, programs, and activities.

University of Mississippi
Dr. Robert C. Khayat, Chancellor

Chartered February 24, 1844, The University of Mississippi began its first session on November 6, 1848, with a four-member faculty offering a general curriculum in liberal arts. Continually strengthening the College of Liberal Arts, the trustees and faculty sought to broaden the work of the institution by the creation of professional and specialized schools to build it into a comprehensive university in fact as well as name. Today the four-campus university offers more than 100 academic programs that lead to careers in engineering, business, telecommunications, politics, journalism, pharmacy, law, medicine, dentistry, accountancy, education, health related professions, and more. The University has kept the flame of academic excellence burning bright by providing the best in educational opportunities through its outstanding programs — a learning environment that has produced 23 of Mississippi's Rhodes Scholars, including the State's first Afro-American honoree. Six federally funded research centers are located on the Oxford campus and bring national attention to the University. The products of their work — new discoveries and well-trained minds to use them — propel our state and nation forward.

The University of Mississippi consists of buildings which are largely Georgian, modified Georgian and contemporary in architectural design. Two of the three surviving antebellum buildings are Greek Revival in design. From the original one-square-mile area, the campus has been expanded to the present total 2,806 acres.

University of Mississippi Medical Center
Dr. A. Wallace Conerly, Vice Chancellor for Health Affairs

The School of Medicine was established on the Oxford campus in 1903. Students took basic science courses for two years then transferred to a medical school out-of-state for the two years of clinical training. The School of Medicine was moved to Jackson in 1955 and became the nucleus of the University of Mississippi Medical Center. In Jackson, the Center started with a four-year medical school, a graduate program, a library, and a teaching hospital. The nursing department moved to the Medical Center in 1956 and was granted school status in 1958. The School of Health Related Professions was added in 1971 and the School of Dentistry in 1974. When the Medical Center opened in 1955, University Hospital consisted of only two wings. Now the teaching hospital is licensed for 623 beds and is the diagnostic and treatment referral center for the entire state. Inpatients total nearly 26,000 annually. The hospital has more than 300,000 outpatient and emergency visits in a year.

University of Mississippi Medical Center occupies a 164-acre campus two miles north of downtown Jackson. The original eight-story building is now the nucleus of a major academic health sciences complex. It includes Schools of Medicine, Nursing, Dentistry, and Health Related Professions; graduate programs in the Medical and Clinical Health Sciences; and University Hospitals and Clinics which are teaching hospitals for all educational programs.

The University of Southern Mississippi was established by legislative act on March 30, 1910, began enrolling students in 1912, and became a comprehensive university in 1962. The main campus, located in Hattiesburg, provides extensive academic programming and a residential experience for students. USM Gulf Coast, with sites at Long Beach, Jackson County, and Keesler Air Force Base, serves commuting students from the Gulf Coast metropolitan area. USM has established a national reputation in research and graduate education through programming at its Hattiesburg and Gulf Coast campuses, as well as at its Stennis Center for Higher Learning and Gulf Coast Research Laboratory in Ocean Springs. Through its people and programs, USM is dedicated to advancing the social, economic, and cultural well-being of residents of Mississippi and society.

The University of Southern Mississippi sites in Hattiesburg and along the Gulf Coast consist of over 1,000 acres. The core of the Hattiesburg campus is centered around a historic quad of columnar building surrounded by modern facilities in science and technology, polymer science, the performing arts and the liberal arts. The recreation center and library, which contains over 225,000 square feet, are focal points of campus activity.
